

PRESS RELEASE

Students Obtain CEBS Designation

September 28, 2015

Temple University's Department of Risk, Insurance, and Healthcare Management and Gamma Iota Sigma's Sigma Chapter are excited to congratulate George Braun, Fox School of Business, Risk Management and Insurance, Class of 2016, and Michael Gaito, Fox School of Business, Risk Management and Insurance, Class of 2016, on receiving their Certified Employee Benefit Specialist (CEBS) designation. Mr. Braun and Mr. Gaito are senior Risk Management and Insurance majors and active members of Gamma Iota Sigma. Both students completed their first exam in February 2015, and passed the remaining seven exams this summer. Attaining the CEBS designation prior to graduating college is rare, so passing all eight exams before the start of their senior years is an extraordinary achievement.

CEBS is the premier designation for Employee Benefit professionals. The candidates demonstrate their mastery of a variety of areas including: group health plan design, management, financing and reform; retirement plan design and management; personal wealth management; and human resources and compensation management. Due to the comprehensive nature of the program, CEBS is one of the most well respected designations in the industry.

George Braun

Michael Gaito

Contact Information:

Kate Michel
Vice President of Communications
Gamma Iota Sigma, Sigma Chapter
kate.michel@temple.edu