18th Semi-Annual Gamma Games

Wednesday, September 22, 2010, Pearson Hall Room 145, 5:30 -8:00pm

It's not news to anyone that this Wednesday, September 22, 2010, from 6 to 8 pm, in Pearson Hall Room 145 is the 18th Semi-Annual Gamma Games. At this point you have seen the videos, heard the rumors, and are probably caught up in the general excitement leading up to what promises to be best Gamma Games ever.

Many students have been training for the event since as far back as last Monday. Kevin Severson, one such student, describes his work out routine: "To get ready for tug-of-war I would tie a rope to my car and pull it around my neighborhood". Kevin admits this may seem a bit extreme, but he adds "great success requires great sacrifice".

The final list of challenges is yet to be released. However, an anonymous source within Gamma Iota Sigma said "this year we worked with the psychology department to develop events that test both, the body and the mind". In anticipation of a particularly bloody year, this year's Gamma Games t-shirts are red.

For those graduating, this is the last opportunity to be crowned champions; to new members, a chance to show everyone what you're made of. The level of competition will be fierce, participants will be ruthless and fun is inevitable. Attendance and willingness to crush your opponents are strongly encouraged. Be there!
